300 revelers take the Strip

Police use Mace in attempt to control crowd Sunday

By Kendra Helmer
Daily Egyptian Reporter

A crowd of more than 300 people took the Strip early Sunday morning, allegedly throwing rocks and bottles at police, and police used Mace in an attempt to control the crowd, the Carbondale police chief said.

At 1:45 a.m., in a scene reminiscent of past Halloweens on the Strip, several people attempted to overturn a parked car on South Illinois Avenue, Don Strom, Carbondale Police Chief, said.

"We were able to get them away from the car," Strom said. "More people came out onto the street and threw bottles and rocks at the police officers. There's no doubt that many of these people were coming out of the liquor establishments and parties."

Strom said 30 to 40 officers from the Carbondale Police, the SIU Police, the Jackson County Sheriff's Department and the Illinois State Police arrived at the Strip to handle the situation. Police used Mace to disperse the crowd because it was considered to be a mob action, Strom said.

"The officers were placed in a very dangerous situation," he said. "We gave orders for people to leave. When people didn't leave, we had officers in a potentially life-threatening situation, so they used Mace."

Strom said one officer suffered minor injuries after being struck in the foot by an item thrown from the crowd, and at least two other officers had minor injuries.

Strom said two businesses were damaged during the incident. Windows were broken at Dairy Queen, 508 S. Illinois Ave., and ## Four weddings and a final?

Student's schedule full with graduation, Army commission ceremony and marriage Saturday

By Lisa M. Pangburn
Daily Egyptian Reporter

Planning a wedding is stressful in itself, a bridegroom-to-be says. But planning to walk down the aisle on the same day as his graduation ceremony and his commissioning in the U.S. Army is proving to be even more hectic for Cort Schnetzler.

Schnetzler, an SIUC senior in animal science from West Plains, Mo., will have a full day on Saturday. He is scheduled to graduate at 11 a.m., get married at 1 p.m. and then he is scheduled to be commissioned as a second lieutenant in the U.S. Army at 7:30 p.m.

"I guess when you have all the stuff to think about you can't get too stressed, or things won't go right," he said. "So we're just taking it one day at a time."

Schnetzler said doing everything in one day may be slightly stressful, but it will be easier for him, his fiancée, and their families, because they will all be in Carbondale on Saturday.

"Because we have family all over the country, this is just more convenient for everyone to come at once," Schnetzler said.

Layne Matthews, Schnetzler's fiancée, said she was concerned about having everything on the same day.

"It's a big deal that Cort is graduating from college, and I didn't want to take away from his graduation," she said.

"But when I brought up having the wedding on the same day, he agreed that it would just be easier for everyone."

Matthews said some of the hectic preparations for Saturday have included finding the pastor for the wedding ceremony and locating hotel rooms for both families and their friends.

"It has been kind of tough finding rooms for everyone," she said. "We have people staying in Mt. Vernon. Other than that everything has gone surprisingly smooth."

Matthews said she is looking forward to the day, but she will be ready to relax when the day is over. "I think we're going to look back on this and say, 'I can't believe we tried to do this all in one day,'" she said.

The couple said after their hectic weekend, they are going to Chicago for their honeymoon.

"It's going to be a time to relax," Schnetzler said. "It's going to be a time to get everything settled down and start looking at our future."

Schnetzler and Matthews met six years ago on a blind date.

"It is a funny story," Matthews said. "We were talking on the phone, and he was joking around saying he was going to take me on a date, and he did. We just hit it off from there."

Matthews said she and Schnetzler were engaged in late October.

"It really wasn't a formal thing,"

University taking steps to prevent future violations of students' privacy—Sanders

By Lori D. Clark
DE Assistant Politics Editor

Steps are being taken to make amends for the recent release of the names of some students who received legislative tuition waivers and to make sure an incident like this will not happen again, the SIU President says.

Last week, some names of SIUC students who received legislative tuition waivers from Illinois legislators were printed in an Associated Press story. SIUC attempted to keep the names of the students private by denying two Freedom of Information Act requests that asked for the students' names.

SIU President Ted Sanders said part of the information on the scholarship documents was public information, such as the names of the legislators who granted the waivers. But information about the students who received the awards is protected by the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act, and this information was not released by the University, Sanders said.

Following the Freedom of Information Act requests, the University attempted to remove information that identified students who had received the waivers. However, Sanders said the information was not removed completely when the documents were released to the media.

Matt Kelley, a reporter with the Associated Press who wrote the story, said he could read the students' names through the black marker that had been used to obscure the names.

In a press conference at SIUC Friday, Sanders said he was "angered, disturbed and embarrassed" about the information being released.

"I'm damned mad about it," Sanders said. "I also deeply regret it happened. I can't tell you how distraught I am with this incident. What has occurred compromises the very integrity of our University."

Curbside trash an expensive gift for students

By Brian T. Sutton
Daily Egyptian Reporter

SIUC students who live off campus and are leaving town this week should be careful of what they place their trash out on the curb because it may cost them part of their rent's security deposit.

The Carbondale City Council adopted an ordinance in June 1995 that authorizes trash collection on days other than regular collection days. The added trash pickup days "re-ate additional charges for renters and residents.

The ordinance states that if trash is left on curbsides on days other than the regular trash day, residents and renters will be billed a $12.50 charge and then $6.25 per minute after the first minute for the collection.

" Quite frequently, the bill goes to the landlord because the renter has left. They may take the money out of the security deposit. "

Wayne Wheels

Carbondale Maintenance and Environmental Services

Wayne Wheels, Carbondale Maintenance and Environmental Services manager, said if a resident's trash takes more than a minute to collect, the resident is charged the additional rate.

"The workers obviously cannot weigh the load on the street, so they use the time as a judgment to the size of the trash load," Wheels said.

"The renter is then billed the amount. Quite frequently, the bill goes to the landlord because the renter has left. They may take the money out of the security deposit."

He said landlords also can be charged for the special collections if they leave trash on the street that has been cleaned out of a vacant residence.

Wheels said there were 256 special collections after the fall semester in 1995, which was the first semester the ordinance was enforced.

Wheels said the ordinance was created to allow trash to be cleaned up so it does not litter the streets when visitors come to town. He said after each spring and fall semester, there are large piles of trash in front of each house, typically in areas populated by students.

"People come to town and see the trash on the street and think this is a pathetic place to send someone to school," he said.

Wheels said the sanitation workers will be out again this week picking up trash as thousands of SIUC students move out.

Cheryl Bryant, co-owner of Paul Bryant Rentals, said two of her rental properties received the special collection after the fall semester. She said she and her husband, Paul Bryant, take precautions to avoid the extra collection charges.

"We tell all of our renters if they are moving out, and it is not their trash day, to place the trash at the back of the house," she said. "That way we can set the trash out on the correct day."

She said she and her husband also drive past their properties to ensure no trash is placed out on the wrong days.

Two professors who began together to retire on same day

By Melissa Jakubowski
DE Assistant Features Editor

After starting work on the same day in 1947, two University professors will retire on the same day this May after 50 years of teaching.

Larry Good and Kenneth Ackerman, associate professors in physical education, were honored for their service to the department and their students at a reception Wednesday in the Kaskaskia and Missouri rooms in the Student Center.

"The professors began their careers on the same day at Temple University in Philadelphia. Good left Temple and came to SIUC in 1967, and Ackerman followed in 1969.

"Larry actually told me about the open position at SIUC," Ackerman said. "He liked Carbondale and the University so much. I figured I would enjoy it also."

After teaching for 50 years, Ackerman said he was ready for retirement. He said they both talked about retiring, but he made his decision first.

"I think I decided before Larry, but he did the paperwork before me," Ackerman said. "The time was right to pursue hobbies, play some golf and travel a little bit."

Good said retirement is an important decision to make and appreciated having a friend to discuss different issues with.

"It helps to have a close friend going through the same thing to talk with," Good said.

Sally Perkins, program director of athletic training, said the professors shared a common commitment concerning their students.

"They both came here at the same time and both went into science-related portions of physical education," she said. "But they both also feel the mission of the University is to teach the

Graduating seniors recall glory days

By Melissa Jakubowski
Daily Egyptian Reporter

After spending some time at SIUC, a person can accumulate many memories. And as some seniors are about to accept their diplomas, they take some time to look back before they begin to look ahead.

According to some seniors, the most memorable experiences happened to them during their freshman and sophomore years.

On one of his first nights out as a freshman, Erik Zumbahlen spent the latter part of his evening digging his friend out of a thorn bush.

Zumbahlen, a senior in recreation from Peotone, had gone out drinking with his friends at T-Birds, which used to be at 109 N. Washington St. On their walk home, Zumbahlen's friend John became a little rowdy.

"Out of no where he screamed, 'Stage Dive!' and landed in this bush," Zumbahlen said. "The next sound we heard was him screaming in pain. When we caught up with him, he was covered in thorns."

Zumbahlen is graduating Friday. He said his experience with the thorn bush will be his fondest memory of SIUC.

"I'll never forget trying to get John out of those bushes while in a drunken stupor," Zumbahlen said. "Not to mention the pain I

" I think my most memorable experience of SIUC will be that I really can't remember anything. "

Jason Grau

felt digging all of those thorns out of my body.

Freshman year was also one of the most memorable years for senior Melissa Miller. Miller, a radio-television major from Mokena, said she and her friends used to smuggle 40-ounce beers into the dorms.

"We would put them in our pants and try to cover them up as we walked inside," she said. "One time we even wrapped them up as presents. We were determined to get them in some way or another."

Aaron Washington, a senior in business administration from Chicago, said he was woken up at 8:02 a.m. by an earthquake when he was a freshman.

Washington said he lived in Neely Hall at the time. He said when the earthquake hit, he and his roommate's bunk bed began to shake.

"I woke up just shaking around in my bed," he said. "So I asked my roommate, 'Do you have a girl down there?' and he told me that he was about to ask me the same thing."

Andy Rohrer, a senior in food and nutrition from Naperville, said his most memorable experience was when he ended up spending some time in jail as a sophomore. Rohrer said he was pulled over at a road block and arrested for driving under the influence of alcohol. He said he wound up spending about six hours singing in the Carbondale city jail.

"I sang 'I Shot the Sheriff' almost the whole time I was in jail," he said. "They finally let me go because I was singing so much."

Even though most seniors have at least one particular incident to look back at, Jason Grau, a senior in food and nutrition from Naperville, said he drank away most of his memories.

"I think my most memorable experience of SIUC will be that I really can't remember anything," he said.

Investigate waiver acceptance, not crossed out names

SIU PRESIDENT TED SANDERS HELD A NEWS conference Friday to apologize for releasing the names of legislative tuition waiver recipients to the press.

The names of the waiver recipients in documents released under a Freedom of Information request were not sufficiently deleted to prevent reading them. The names were supposed to be deleted to comply with provisions of the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act.

And now an independent counsel is being hired to investigate who is at fault for not correctly deleting the students' names.

President Sanders is correct to bring in the independent counsel, but he is sending the counsel off in the wrong direction. The counsel should be investigating why the University accepted the waivers.

Sanders said the investigation is being initiated to ensure there was no personal negligence in the release of the information.

Investigating the process for negligence will only succeed in giving the administration a person to blame. This may help SIU soothe the ruffled feathers of state politicians angered over the release of this information, but it will not cure the real problem: SIUC accepting waivers handed out by Illinois politicians to students not residing in their districts.

THE ONE CRITERIA FOR LEGISLATIVE WAIVERS is that the student reside in the politician's district.

The information SIU released revealed that some of the 320 legislative tuition waivers granted to SIUC students in 1994 and 1995 did not follow that criteria.

Earlier in the spring, a Central Illinois newspaper discovered that some politicians were giving out waivers to students outside of their districts as political favors.

Sanders said he assumes it is the University's responsibility to check on the compliance of the waivers with criteria. He also said that he is unsure if the University had the resources available to check out all of the waivers.

This investigating counsel might be the best option to employ to find the answers to these assumptions and doubts.

The counsel could tell the University where the breakdown came in checking the waivers, and if the University has other waivers and scholarships that were incorrectly accepted.

While the error that released the names of the waiver recipients might have embarrassed the University, the waivers cost SIU money. It would make more sense to investigate the process that is costing the University money rather than searching for a clerical error.

"Problem of evil" a sorry excuse to justify behavior

The so-called "Problem of Evil" has been used as an excuse to deny the existence of God for thousands of years. Simply defined, evil exists, therefore God cannot exist because He is supposed to be good. God doesn't meet my standard for good, so He cannot exist.

Men have become the judges of God because God permitted them to choose evil. God gave man liberty to choose obedience to life or sin to death. Adam chose sin and death. Yet men blame God.

Scripture tells us that God patiently endures the wicked for the sake of those who will be redeemed in His Son Jesus Christ (Romans 9:22). Those who do not see fit to acknowledge God are given over to what they want to do (Romans 1:21).

If you want to jump off a building and defy God's law of gravity, He may permit you to suffer the consequences. God tempts no one with evil, but men are tempted when drawn by their own evil desire (James 1:14). Foolish men charge God with wrong when they feel the consequences of doing what they wanted to do in the first place.

Sadly, when men do these things others also suffer. If you are lazy, someone else has to work so you can eat. If you are immoral and get AIDS, someone else has to work to care for you while others pay the bill.

Sin always ripples out onto others, your children included. Sin refuses to love its neighbor as itself, therefore others must suffer the consequences of what we do as sinners. But God loved the world so much that He sent His only begotten Son to suffer the consequences of our sin on the cross.

The penalty is eternal death, the gift, through the sacrifice and resurrection of Jesus Christ, is eternal life. In Jesus "we have redemption through His blood, the forgiveness of sins" (Ephesians 1:7).

This is what God offers to those who repent and believe His Gospel. Otherwise you can go on doing what you want, but please don't blame God for letting you go your own way. The fault lies with you.

Carbondale resident

Economic woes caused by media and Democrats

To complement Andy Volpert's letter about the ignorance of students who align with the Democratic party, I would like to make some additional points.

The reason Bill Clinton is 21 points ahead of Bob Dole in the polls is because of media-bias and public ignorance.

I would like to start by discussing the apparently outrageous gas prices. The Democrats and liberal media have the public believing that these gas prices are due to the conservative Republicans in Congress bowing to the lobbying of the oil companies. The fact of the matter is that basic market theory in this country is not understood! The rise in gas prices is not a ploy by the Republicans to destroy the middle class. It is merely a response to changing market conditions. Of course, there is not time to go into the causes of it here, but I highly suggest that anyone who thinks otherwise should take an introductory-level economics class.

And while I'm on the topic of this hyped up gas thing, I need to make it clear that the idea to sell 12 million barrels (only two thirds of the daily U.S. oil consumption) of U.S. oil was not actually Bill Clinton's idea, and it was not intended to lower the gas prices. The sale of the oil was a Republican idea that was included with the budget bill that passed last week, and the money that was made from this sale was intended to go toward the deficit.

The Democrats and the liberal media jumped all over this opportunity by saying that the President was going to help the country's gas crisis.

In all actuality, however, the Democrats need to keep their hands off the economy because markets work! The Democrats need to stop trying to seem like the hero and do something that will actually help the average American citizen.

The Democrats appeal to what the people think sounds right. Our liberally-influenced education system and media blames all the countries woes on the Republicans who, in reality, are the only people who know what is really going on. As Mr. Volpert said, voting Democratic is "easier than thinking." This certainly is true and can be seen in almost every political issue.

Editorial Policies

Signed articles, including letters, viewpoints and other commentaries, reflect the opinions of their authors only. Unsigned editorials represent a consensus of the Daily Egyptian Board. Letters to the editor must be submitted in person to the editorial page editor, Room 1247, Communications Building. Letters should be typewritten and double spaced. All letters are subject to editing and will be limited to 350 words. Students must identify themselves by class and major, faculty members by rank and department, non-academic staff by position and department. Letters for which verification of authorship cannot be made will not be published.

Dorm students to get massages

By Tracy Taylor
Daily Egyptian Reporter

In an effort to relieve stress and help students get ready for finals, on-campus housing officials have arranged a two-day massage and relaxation program for students living in the dorms.

Massages and free snacks are available in all campus dorm dining halls Monday Tuesday from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m.

Paulette Curkin, programming coordinator for University Housing, said it is important for students to have a healthy way to relieve stress during finals.

Curkin said University Housing has been offering special programs during finals week for as long as she could remember.

"We started talking with the well-ness people and thought of relaxation things we could do for finals," she said.

Curkin said SIUC Housing officials hired three professional massage therapists this year.

"They will give head and neck massages for five or 10 minutes each," she said.

Curkin said the dining halls will give healthy snacks including fresh fruit juices, fruits, cookies, sodas and vegetables to dorm students.

Anita Thomas, a sophomore in education from Chicago, said massage therapy for students is a great idea.

"A lot of people are really stressed around finals time," she said. "This is a way to relax them and calm their nerves down."

Kelly Rander, a junior in English education from Evanston, said she went to a session last year and it really helped her relax.

"It's a healthy break from studying for finals."

Curkin said this is the third year of the free massages.

"I like massages. I thought students would like it too," she said.

The program is sponsored by the Housing Program Office, Residence Hall Dining and the Residence Hall Association.

After spending the last several weeks glued to their word processors struggling to get papers done on time, students probably are not eager to jump right back on the computer. But in case the summer heat drives anyone indoors for virtual surfing, here are a few web sites that might help make vacation a little more interesting

<http://www.lntnet.com/~sltc>

The Southern Illinois Tourism Council homepage will evolve during the summer, but already this new site has many interesting facts about the area. Students who will be in the Chicago this summer and are thinking about visiting friends at SIUC can check the Carbondale weather and see what is happening in town on the calendar of events. The site also provides transportation information.

<http://www.siu.edu/slu.html>

This page contains a wide range of links and on-site texts about SIUC, Carbondale, Southern Illinois and the Midwest. Maintained by SIUC, both the on- and off-campus information will be useful to students and faculty involved with the University during the summer. The Carbondale-based Southern Illinoisan has provided this site with some useful historical information, outdoor resources, tourism advice and festival schedules. Regional sites, including Chicago and St. Louis information, also are provided.

Students on vacation will doubtlessly grow to miss Southern Illinois University's perennial commentator, Gus Bode. The Daily Egyptian online not only carries the daily edition updated at noon on the date of publication but contains archived issues for the last year. It's a great place to reminisce, to look at pictures and stories of the past year, and follow the ever-controversial letters to the editor.

NO TRIAL DATE SET FOR FRATERNITY ASSAULT CASE —

A trial date has not yet been set for the case in which the Delta Chi Fraternity and two former members are being sued for more than $50,000. Douglas North, of Casey, filed a lawsuit against Cory Vandever, 24, John Giese, 24 and the Delta Chi Fraternity following an incident on the Strip in May 1994 in which North was assaulted by Vandever and Giese. North originally included a negligence count in the lawsuit, but it was dropped.

It alleged that Delta Chi Fraternity sponsored a social event at the American Tap, 518 S. Illinois Ave., and negligently failed to monitor its members at the event.

PRETRIAL FOR AIRPLANE THEFT SUSPECT FRIDAY —

The pretrial for the student accused of stealing a University airplane last December is scheduled for Friday at 10 a.m. at the Jackson County Courthouse.

Todd McCutchan, a sophomore in aviation from Evansville, Ind., allegedly took a University airplane from the Southern Illinois Airport on Dec. 15 without permission and flew it to West Virginia where he was arrested. McCutchan faces charges of theft, operating an aircraft while under the influence of alcohol and knowingly consuming alcoholic beverages within eight hours prior to operating an aircraft.

WITNESS HARASSMENT HEARING TO BE JUNE 21 —

Scott Whatcott, the former SIU student accused of harassing SIU Police Sgt. Steve Ellis, will have a pretrial on June 21. He faces a charge of harassing a witness. On Feb. 1, Whatcott allegedly sent a box containing the makings of an explosive device to Ellis. Ellis arrested Whatcott on Jan. 30 for an alleged assault. Whatcott faces charges of assault and disorderly conduct from the Jan. 30 incident. The pre-trial for those charges is June 9.

JOHN MORO TO FACE SENTENCING ON MAY 21 —

John Moro, the Centralia man convicted on April 3 of armed violence, unlawful use of weapons and aggravated unlawful restraint is scheduled to be sentenced May 21.

Moro filed a motion for a new trial April 30. The decision on whether to conduct a new trial will be made May 16. Moro was accused of abducting his daughter, Demetria, at gunpoint from Giant City School last August. Police apprehended Moro 15 days later in Washington.

ABUSED DOG HAS NEW LIFE WITH LOCAL FAMILY —

Dutch, the mixed-breed Labrador who was strangled by his owner on March 27, was adopted on April 13. A Humane Society representative said Dutch was adopted by a woman and her daughter, who were the only ones to inquire about the dog. Dutch will be a house dog.

FOOTBALL TEAM, GREEKS SETTLING DIFFERENCES —

Proposals have been submitted to members of two SIUC fraternities and SIUC football players in an attempt to resolve more than a month of negotiations following an altercation that occurred between the groups in March. The altercation took place on March 23 at Lincoln Middle School when members of the football team allegedly requested to be let into an Alpha Phi Alpha and Kappa Alpha Psi event for free. Then fights broke out between the groups. Carbondale police officers responded to the incident and sprayed Mace into the crowd.

Shawn Watson, SIUC head football coach, said the proposals are an attempt to "put the whole thing to bed." Maurice Johnson, assistant director of Student Development, said specifics of the proposals could not be released.

REPORTS IN ALLEGED HAZING BEING REVIEWED —

The Jackson County States Attorney office is reviewing reports concerning an alleged incident of hazing at SIUC.

Three members of the Delta Sigma Theta sorority were found guilty of hazing following an SIUC judicial board hearing. The incident occurred in October 1995. The three girls are in the process of appealing the judicial board decision. Mike Wepsiec, Jackson County States Attorney, said though the case is now at his office, he could not comment any further on the situation.

but we just decided to get married," she said.

"It wasn't a huge decision. It was just something that happened."

Both Schnetzler and Matthews said the wedding will be small and short.

"We knew we weren't going to be able to have a big wedding, so it has worked out fine," Schnetzler said.

Matthews said she and Schnetzler have no definite plans for the future.

She said Schnetzler will be in the Army Reserves and will be looking for a job in the animal science field.

Sanders said he could not fix what happened, but he made three promises on the matter.

"Long ago I learned three actions one must take when a mistake has been made: one, apologize; two, make sure it won't happen again; three, try to make things better. I believe the steps I and Southern Illinois University have taken are in the spirit of those three principles."

Sanders has appointed former Southern Illinois U.S. Attorney Frederick Hess to investigate the matter. Hess will recommend other steps that need to be taken to protect students' right to privacy, Sanders said.

In the investigation, Sanders said he plans to learn if negligence was involved when the documents were released. Once the person or people responsible for releasing the documents are identified, Sanders said the University will take appropriate action against them.

Sanders said he was anxious to have Hess on campus to get the matter resolved. He also said he hopes resolving the matter will not take more than a couple of weeks. Sanders said he will direct SIUC Chancellor John Guyon and SIUC Chancellor Nancy Belk to appoint a single person to be responsible for all Freedom of Information Act requests and the release of information.

Suspected illegal immigrants hurt after overturning truck during chase

Los Angeles Times

SAN DIEGO—A truck full of suspected illegal immigrants led a California Highway Patrol car on a chase at up to 100 mph on Interstate 15 Sunday morning before rolling over and injuring three of the occupants, the CHP said. A CHP officer spotted a Ford truck with a camper shell and apparently altered registration tabs on its rear license plate traveling north on I-15 in Riverside County about 10:15 a.m.

When the CHP car used its red light to order the truck to pull over, the driver of the truck instead made a U-turn into the southbound lanes and sped upward of 100 mph before attempting to use an off-ramp to Lake Elsinore, according to CHP spokesman Dennis Welch.

The truck failed to negotiate the off-ramp and flipped over.

A semester in pictures

Spring semester 1996 brought memorable people and events to SIUC. These are photos of some of the most remembered happenings.

Easter services at Bald Knob Cross (1), in Alto Pass, attracted approximately 900 worshippers. The cover band Strutter (2) provided an electrifying performance at Detours with its Kiss tribute. SIUC student Jenn Gaither (3) attempts to rid her apartment of flood waters after excessive rains the week before finals. Jesse Jackson (4) hugs SIUC student Nicole Sanford after he spoke on the Shryock Auditorium steps about the importance of registering to vote. For the first time in the last 10 years, the SIUC men's basketball team (5) did not advance to the MVC tournament. "The Minnow," (6) modeled after the boat in "Gilligan's Island," sails in the 23rd Annual Cardboard Boat Regatta on Campus Lake. SIUC students Erika Kohoutek and Kris Bein (7) sparked much debate on campus regarding same-sex marriage after their symbolic wedding on the steps of Shryock Auditorium April 11.

students. They have been a big asset to the department."

At the reception, athletic training students presented both professors with certificates of appreciation for their constant dedication.

Good said they remained friends throughout the years and probably will keep in touch after retirement.

"Both of us are still staying in the area," he said. "We'll probably stay friends even if we consider other places to live."

Good said it will take a long time to adjust to not working with students, but he will enjoy the time off.

"Retirement is not a clear, easy decision," he said. "I love working with the students. I could do it to the day they force me out."

After retirement, Good, who holds a degree in kinesiology, which is the study of muscular movement, and has an interest in art, said he plans to continuing taking art classes through the University. Ackerman, who teaches exercise physiology and physical fitness, said he plans to spend more time golfing.

Arnoldi

private and community colleges.

"One of my main goals is to provide representation for the whole—all the higher education institutions in Illinois," he said. "I hope to take the collective needs of Illinois students, refine those collective needs and take that to the IBHE."

IBHE recommends budgets for state colleges and universities to the Illinois General Assembly and makes recommendations on school policies and programs.

An IBHE student representative attends all board meetings and has full voting rights on the board.

Arnoldi previously represented SIUC on the IBHE Student Advisory Committee, which is composed of students from Illinois colleges and universities and reports student concerns to the IBHE student representative.

Bonita Dahlbach, former IBHE

Student Advisory Committee secretary, said she worked with Arnoldi this past year. She said she believes Arnoldi is the best choice for the IBHE student representative position.

"I really think he'll do an excellent job because of his strong leadership abilities and his ability to communicate his ideas," Dahlbach.

Although Arnoldi was recently denied a spot on the SIUC student trustee ballot because of an alleged incomplete petition, he said he will still represent SIUC to the best of his abilities.

The student trustee petitions require 200 student signatures, addresses and social security numbers before candidates are allowed on the ballot. Arnoldi had 220 signatures, but 25 of those signatures were invalidated because some students did not write their proper social security numbers on the document.

"When one door shuts on you, two more open, and I think that's what happened when I was denied the student trustee candidacy," he said. "I will still be representing SIUC, but my primary concern is going to be higher education students in Illinois."

Arnoldi said when he begins traveling to all of the Illinois colleges later this month, he hopes to change any unjust perceptions of SIUC.

"When I am out there talking with the students at other Illinois colleges, I really hope to show them that SIUC is not about the typical (party) stereotypes," he said.

Arnoldi said one goal he hopes to accomplish soon is to receive all the student handbooks from Illinois colleges.

"By receiving the student handbooks, I can learn about the different academic concerns across the state through the universities' mission statements," he said. "I intend on having an open-door policy for the students. Any time there is concern on an issue, then I will look at the issue and how that particular university handles it normally and take actions to the IBHE."

Fewer people killed each other in 1995

Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON—Despite a steady drumbeat of crime news, 8 percent fewer murders were committed in 1995 than in the previous year, the FBI reported Sunday.

Violent crimes of all kinds fell 4 percent, the FBI said, and all serious crimes—those against property as well as people—dropped 2 percent, the fourth consecutive annual decline in that index.

The decrease in crimes reported to authorities comes at a time when lawlessness ranks as a leading domestic concern, measured by recent polls and by the emphasis placed on the issue this election year by Republicans and Democrats alike.

In the face of GOP criticism that the Clinton administration has been soft on crime, Attorney General Janet Reno called the FBI figures "a further indication that aroused communities and energized federal, state and local law enforcement are working together to cut crime. We will continue to put more cops on the beat, get guns off the street and put violent criminals behind bars."

Government officials seemed hard-pressed to explain the apparent gap between the drop in reported crime and the increase in political concern over crime.

A recent survey by the Gallup Organization for the White House's Office of National Drug Control Policy found crime and violence to be the top national concern among adults. One out of six adults put crime at the top of the list, and more than one out of four ranked it second or third, according to federal drug czar Barry R. McCaffrey.

McCaffrey, recounting his observations during a recent nightlong ride around a drug-infested section of New York City with a NYPD lieutenant, said "things have gotten enormously better" compared with what he observed when he made the same trip three years ago.

"It's still a nightmare," he said. "But we are doing better."

Frank Zimring, a professor at University of California, Berkeley's Boalt Law School and currently a visiting professor at New York University Law School, attributed crime's high ranking in the polls to the incidence of crime stories in the news media rather than to direct or even indirect personal contact with crime.

Gerald M. Caplan, dean of the McGeorge Law School in Sacramento, Calif., said that "some kinds of crime show a recklessness and a wantonness that's new—home invasions, carjackings and the like."

1996 SPRING SEMESTER FINAL EXAMINATION SCHEDULE INFORMATION

The examination schedule attempts to avoid examination conflicts by providing separate examination periods for Tuesday - Thursday lecture classes. Other information about final examinations is listed below:

1. The class final exam period is scheduled based on the meeting time and days configuration listed on the first line of the class entry in the Schedule of Classes book (which should be the same as the first printed line for the school on the registered student's schedule print-out). For example, a class section is listed in the Schedule book on two lines in the manner:

08:00 - 08:50 T,R
09:00 - 10:50 W

The listed starting time for the first line of the entry is "08:00". The meeting days of that first line are "T,R", and therefore are in the category "Begins with a T or R". The Exam Date and Period is by the attached Spring '96 Final Examination Schedule to be Thursday, May 9 at 12:50 - 02:50 p.m.

2. Classes should plan to hold their final examination in their regularly scheduled classrooms. The space scheduling section of the Office of Admissions and Records will forward to departments information relative to the location for examinations for those classes that cannot hold their examinations in their regularly scheduled rooms because of a space conflict. This will be done sufficiently in advance of the final examination days to provide adequate notice for all.

Classes that meet less than the entire semester should hold their exams during the last regular class session prior to final examinations.

It is a policy of the University that no final examination be given prior to the scheduled final examination period, and that students be given their examinations at the designated times. Any deviation from this policy must be approved by the Dean of the College.

3. Students who find they have more than three examinations on one day may petition, and students who have two examinations scheduled at one time should petition their academic dean for approval to take an examination during the make-up examination period on the last day. Provision for such a make-up examination period does not mean that students may decide to miss the scheduled examination time and expect to make it up during this make-up period. This period is to be used only for students whose petitions have been approved by their dean.

4. Students who must miss a final examination may not take an examination before the time scheduled for the class examination. Information relative to the proper grade to be given students who miss a final examination and are not involved in a situation covered in the preceding paragraph will be found in the mimeographed memorandum forwarded to members of the instructional staff at the time they received the final grade listing for the recording of grades.

5. Individualized Learning Program classes will be administered at the SIUC Student Center throughout final exam week. Students wishing to sit for an exam must contact the Division of Continuing Education at Washington Square 'C' (536-7751) at least three days in advance in order to reserve a time-slot and receive a room assignment.

Departments prepare for graduation ceremonies

Distinguished guests to address graduating seniors, administrators at commencements

By Tammy Taylor
Daily Egyptian Reporter

The best part about commencement is knowing how hard the graduates worked and seeing the happiness on their faces, SIUC administrators say.

Lee Person, associate dean of the College of Liberal Arts, said he will be the lucky person who will read the COLA graduates' names as they receive their diploma jackets.

"I will have the best place in the Arena to see how proud the graduates will be," he said.

"That is the best part for me."

Donald Beggs, dean of the College of Education, said he looks forward to seeing the graduates' happy faces because many people worked very hard to get to that point.

"There was a time not long ago when fewer people attended the graduation ceremony," he said. "This year, we expect more participation."

Beggs said the highlight of commencement for the College of Education will be the presentation of an honorary degree to James Fomear, from Marion, Ky.

He said this is the first time in more than 30 years the college has awarded an honorary degree.

Beggs said Fomear is receiving the honorary degree primarily because he founded Res-Care, the Louisville, Ky.-based company, which is a leading provider of residential, training and support services for disabled people.

He said Fomear earned both his bachelor's degree in elementary education in 1960 and his master's degree in rehabilitation counseling in 1961 at SIUC.

Jo Lynn Whiston, assistant director of the Alumni Association, said the Alumni Achievement Award will be given to 10 alumni during each commencement ceremony. She said the recipients are chosen because they are outstanding in their field.

"The award is the highest award a college can give," she said.

The Alumni Achievement Award recipients are: Harold Kuehn of Du Quoin, College of Agriculture; Larry DeJarnett of Rancho Palos Verde, Calif., College of Business and Administration; Jerry Leman of Bloomfield Hills, Mich., College of Engineering; Carole Brandt of Dallas, Texas, College of Liberal Arts; Barbara Weber of Arlington, College of Science; Patrick Auman of Humble, Texas, School of Social Work; and James Wright of Reston, Va., College of Technical Careers. These people are also guest speakers for their respective colleges.

Other recipients of the Alumni Achievement Award are: James Fomear of Marion, Ky., College of Education; Karen Kendall of Princeville, School of Law; Douglas Anderson of Tempe, Ariz., College of Mass Communication and Media Arts.

Other guest speakers are: Barbara Butterfield for the College of Education; SIUC President Ted Sanders for the School of Law; and Delano Lewis for the College of Mass Communication and Media Arts.

CESL program displays work

By Lori D. Clark
DE Assistant Politics Editor

Cheong Ju-Young says sometimes when she talks to her family in Korea, she cries because she misses them. But she says learning to speak, read and understand English at SIUC is important enough that she does not mind being away from her homeland.

Ju-Young is a part of the Center for English as a Second Language program at SIUC. The program offers courses in English for students who have little background in the language.

Ju-Young will participate in an annual center exhibition from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. today in Ballroom B of the Student Center. She will display a newsletter designed by her class to show the progress she and her classmates have made in speaking and writing English.

The exhibition also will show materials such as posters, essays and other activities the students have done in class.

Kim Hughes Wilhelm, assistant professor in the CESL program, said the exhibition was planned to benefit the students in the program and to display the students' accomplishments.

"The main reason we do it is so they can develop a sense of pride and accomplishment," Wilhelm said. "People should have a real audience in their work. It's also a good way to educate students."

Ju-Young said she has found different things to combat her homesickness, including meeting students in her CESL classes, which have helped lessen missing her family.

Ju-Young said in order to improve her English skills, she stays home a lot to study the language.

"I stay home to improve my listening skills by watching TV and listening to music," she said.

Ju-Young will finish the program and leave the United States in October. She plans to continue her studies at a university in Korea and study radio broadcasting.

She said she would like to study more in the United States. But being so far from her family is an incentive to return to Korea, she said.

Imbalance between U.S.-Japanese student exchange worries officials

Los Angeles Times

TOKYO—Raelyn Campbell first came to Japan as a high school student. Now the 25-year-old Oregon native is back, studying international politics at the elite Tokyo University on a prestigious Education Ministry fellowship.

She is a fluent Japanese speaker and works part time for a member of Parliament.

In the eyes of both countries, Campbell is a success: a young American who came to Japan impressionable, was intrigued — and probably will spend the rest of her life working on Japan-related activities.

"America should know more about Japan — they are our biggest trading partner," Campbell says.

But people like Campbell are rare. Each year, 45,000 Japanese students flood the United States to study, while only 1,400 Americans trickle to Japan.

The imbalance worries top officials on both sides of the Pacific, who fret that not enough Americans know or care about Japan.

Last month, President Clinton and Japanese Prime Minister Ryutaro Hashimoto issued an educational initiative to increase the number of American students, new graduates, researchers, teachers and artists coming to Japan.

"The U.S.-Japan relationship is absolutely critical to the future of both the United States and Japan, for economic and security relations," says U.S. Ambassador Walter F. Mondale, who has championed student exchanges between the United States and Japan.

"There's only about 1,400 students here from the U.S., and most are here only for a very short time. I say it's dangerous. We need to have far more."

Japan, too, hopes to get more

Americans interested in coming here.

"The Japan-America relationship is extremely important. But it is built on people."

"Without those people, the U.S.-Japan relationship will be weak," an Education Ministry official says.

The majority of students who come are euphoric. Most say they plan to make Japan a central part of their professional lives — showing that early exposure pays off.

Jay Alabaster, 21, a Princeton University engineering student who is spending a year at Kyushu University, says he will definitely be back within five years and that he hopes his connection with Japan will stretch out for his entire life.

Despite rave reviews by students, systemic obstacles can be daunting.

Strip

Puff 'n' Stuff, 811 S. Illinois Ave.

Strom said a portable radio was stolen from an officer during a struggle with a suspect. A window was broken on a marked squad car, a vehicle spotlight was smashed and several marked and unmarked police cars were scratched.

It took officers approximately three hours to disperse the crowd that gathered on the Strip. Twelve people were arrested, at least six of whom are STUC students. Strom said more arrests are pending.

Pete Chivancak, an undecided freshman from Evergreen Park, was on the Strip when police arrived.

"I was right in the middle of it on people's shoulders," he said. "The police started coming at us with Mace. They used it on everybody. I got sprayed a couple of times, but I was having too much fun to leave."

Strom said when a situation turns dangerous, people should leave the area rather than stay to observe the action.

"It always amazes me that people continue to stand around when the situation becomes dangerous," Strom said. "They see people throwing bottles and trying to turn over cars, but they stay and cheer people on."

Strom said he arrived at the Strip about 30 minutes after the confrontation began.

"I got there and heard people talking about how great it was to get Mace," he said. "To some people, this is fun."

Strom said he is not sure why the crowd turned violent.

"There has been a history over time of some people getting out in the street, which is something we've been flexible about," he said. "But there are a few people who develop a mob mentality and do things that are stupid and pose a danger to others. Some people get caught up in it and do things normally they don't do."

Strom said alcohol probably was a factor in the altercation.

The six people who were arrested and charged with mob action were: Pedro Lopez, 19, of Ft. Collins, Colo.; David G. McGraw, 32, of Carbondale; Adam D. Reindl, 21, of Carbondale; Eric J. White, 24, of Carbondale; Gerald E. Yungling, 25, of Naperville, and Dennis H. Blayney, 20, of Carbondale.

Also arrested were Daniel S. Chripczuk, 19, of Glen Ellyn, for aggravated battery, criminal damage to property and resisting arrest; Glen E. Johnson, 19, of Tamaroa, for mob action and resisting arrest; Aaron M. Spears, 20, of Normal, for aggravated battery and resisting arrest; Scott R. Fridrych, 19, of LaGrange Park, for aggravated battery and mob action; Jason R. Hull, 22, of St. Louis, for mob action and reckless conduct; and Gabriel A. Banks, 19, of Nashville, for criminal damage to property, theft, escape, underage consumption of alcohol and public consumption of alcohol.

Strom said city officials will be consulting with University officials to determine whether further action can be sought under the student disciplinary code.

After the crowd dispersed, Strom said street maintenance employees were called in to clear the road of glass and other debris. While cleaning the street, two city employees were injured in a vehicle accident when their vehicle collided with a passenger car. The employees and passengers in the car were treated at Memorial Hospital of Carbondale and were released.

President likely to win—Democratic head

Donald Fowler says Dole probably will not override the support behind Clinton

By Donita Polly
DE Politics Editor

Although the 1996 presidential election will be a close and tight race, President Bill Clinton will win the election, the chairman of the Democratic National Committee says.

Donald Fowler, chair of the committee, gave the last lecture in the Morton-Kennedy Public Affairs Lecture Series Thursday night. The lecture, "The 1996 Presidential Campaign As I See It," was sponsored by the political science department.

Fowler said presidential candidate Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kansas, is a resourceful, competent person with a strong campaign.

However, Fowler said he does not think Dole can override the support behind Clinton and win the election.

"Obviously he's (Dole) not my cup of tea politically," Fowler said. "It is difficult for me to see how the president is going to lose."

Democrats are anticipating that the gap between Clinton and Dole will narrow as it gets closer to November because Republicans will begin using issues, such as

Fowler

Whitewater, against Clinton, Fowler said.

He said Clinton will use his ability to bring communities together and talk about national issues in a positive, optimistic way to win the election.

Another reason Clinton is going to win the election is because he has been focusing his campaign on the one-third of the population that feels alienated by government, Fowler said.

He said one-third of the population identify with Republicans, one-third identify with Democrats and the other third are alienated.

"We have a public divided that we haven't seen in a long, long time," he said.

He said this one-third is looking for change and someone who will focus on improving America's future, and Clinton has been doing that.

He said Clinton's ability to appear non-partisan has enhanced the president's popularity with the American people because he works on solving problems and not on who is causing the problems.

Fowler said this part of the population came over quickly to Clinton's side, but Clinton has to be wary because they could abandon the president just as quickly.

"This one-third of people in the middle are very volatile and fickle," Fowler said. "It's a long time before the battle is over."

Sexual harassment stories to be displayed

Exhibit to bring issue to forefront; women to share about pressure, experiences with problem

By Kendra Helmer
Daily Egyptian Reporter

An SIUC graduate student will provide an opportunity this summer for sexual harassment victims to tell their stories in what she says will be a supportive atmosphere through a display at the University Museum.

Ruth Foote, a graduate student in cinema and photography, is doing her thesis on sexual harassment victims.

She will have a three-part exhibition of photographs of women who have been sexually harassed.

The photographs will be accompanied by text of each woman's account of her experience.

"Two years ago, I was sexually harassed and filed a University complaint," Foote said. "The pressure during and after the harassment and complaint process to keep silent about my experience was overwhelming."

Foote said the project has been an empowering experience for her.

"Breaking the silence is an ongoing process," she said. "Silence protects the perpetrators. Women have to network and support each other so that the power harassers have to intimidate us weakens and so the shame we sometimes carry for being recipients vanishes."

Foote said through her project, she hopes to make others aware of the issues victims have to deal with.

"Often they (the victims) think they imagine it, they are at fault, or no one will believe them," she said.

"The more we talk to each other and validate our experience, the more confidence we'll have to deal with it. This is the idea behind my project."

Foote said women who want to tell their stories while keeping their identities anonymous can still be part of the exhibit. Foote photographed some of the subjects by using shadows so any identifying facial features were not shown.

"Some had never told anyone before telling me," she said. "Some got really uncomfortable when old feelings of shame and fear reemerge while retelling a past incident."

"All have been affected to some degree. So far, they have been very enthusiastic about participating in my project."

One of Foote's subjects, Macy Lai, an SIUC doctoral student in counseling psychology from Philadelphia, said she was sexually harassed four years ago while working at a Philadelphia community college.

"I was in the staff lunchroom when somebody introduced me to two other staff workers," she said. "One of the guys offered to buy me

"Women should come forward with their stories only when they're ready."

Counselor, Women's Center

dessert. After dessert, I thanked him. He winked at me and said, 'You know, you can do things to pay me back.'"

Lai said she was confused by the one man's comment and did not know how to respond.

"A week later, I ran into the two guys again, and one of them told me I could sit on his lap," she said. "It made me feel really uncomfortable and nauseous."

After the incidents, Lai said she told some of her co-workers.

"One of my co-workers said those two guys do that to all female employees," she said.

"I was enraged. I have a right to feel respected and safe in my workplace."

Lai said she filed a complaint with the personnel manager at the college.

"He was really supportive and told me that the two guys broke the law," she said.

"I told him that I just wanted the harassment to stop."

Lai said the personnel manager instructed her to write a letter about the incident. She sent copies of the letter to the two men's boss.

Lai said the men were required to write a letter of apology and stop their behavior.

"After that, when they saw me, they ran away from me," Lai said.

"It made me feel powerful and safe again in my workplace. I'm one of the lucky ones."

"Not every woman should do what I do, but I was lucky in that my co-workers were really supportive of me. But if I had ignored the harassment, I would have a problem respecting myself."

Lai said that by sharing her story through Foote's exhibit, she wants to encourage other women and make them aware of their options.

"Women do not have to be passive victims," Lai said. "We can take action."

Carolyn Prinz, a counselor at the Carbondale Women's Center, 408 W. Freeman St., said sexual harassment comes in many forms, one of which is verbal, as in Lai's case.

"Sexual harassment is defined as any unwanted sexual pressure one person inflicts upon another," Prinz said.

"It could be verbal, physical or putting up sexually explicit pictures."

Prinz said she counseled 13 women from July 1995 to February for sexual harassment.

"Women should come forward with their stories only when they're ready," she said. "And if she feels safe enough, she should confront her harasser in a non-violent manner and name the harassment. Say, 'You did this. That is sexual harassment. Don't do it again.'"

Foote is still working on her project. Anyone who is interested in participating can call her at the Department of Cinema and Photography.

Foote's exhibit will be on display at the University Museum in June. An opening day for the exhibit has not yet been set.

Exxon Valdez vessel may return to Alaskan waters

Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON—In 1990, the year after it spilled 10.6 million gallons of crude oil into Alaska's Prince William Sound, the Exxon Valdez was banned from the environmentally sensitive, marine-rich waterway.

Now, with a new name on the bow of the 987-foot ship, its corporate owner is trying to return the vessel to work in Alaskan waters, or to get the U.S. government to pay for their losses.

SeaRiver Maritime, the Exxon subsidiary that operated the ship at the time the vessel's name became synonymous with the risks of ocean transport of oil and that still owns it, has brought two suits in federal courts: One, filed in U.S. District Court in Houston, where the shipping company is based, would have the law banning the vessel from Prince William Sound declared unconstitutional.

The other, filed in the U.S. Court of Claims in Washington, demands unspecified compensation for income lost because the ship can no longer operate on the San Francisco-Alaska route for which it was designed. Instead, the ship, now known as the Mediterranean, is running what SeaRiver Maritime says is a less profitable route between Europe and Egypt.

Bookstore: Sell books back

By Mary Beth Arimond
Daily Egyptian Reporter

SIUC students should sell their books because it is the easiest and most direct way to save the cost of their college education, a bookstore director says.

Jim Skiersch, director of University Bookstore in the SIUC Student Center, said students should not save their books because they could go to the library for further information.

"There are people who are going to have books that went to old editions," he said.

"The information could be outdated by the time students refer to it."

Skiersch said students save about 75 percent off the total cost of a textbook when the textbook has been purchased used and if the professor is going to use the same textbook next semester.

"When purchasing a book, a student will pay 25 percent less than he would for a new copy of the same textbook," he said. "If that book could be sold again to a student who will be taking the same class the following semester, the bookstore will pay half of the new textbook price for that book at the end of the semester."

He said textbooks that will not be re-used at SIUC next semester will be bought by textbook companies who sell used books to college stores across the country.

"The more used books the bookstore can buy, the more savings students can have."

Lee Blankenship
Manager, 710 Bookstore

Skiersch said wholesalers give students on other campuses the opportunity to save money by purchasing used books. He said books bought by wholesalers that cannot be sold elsewhere are donated to charitable organizations or recycled as scrap paper.

Seth Leis, a freshman in art education from Carbondale, said once he is finished taking his finals, he will sell his books back except for the few that could be used as reference material.

Lee Blankenship, manager of 710 Bookstore, 710 S. Illinois Ave., said the bookstore determines the buy-back price according to how many books are needed for next semester.

He said it depends on whether or not professors teach the same course next semester.

"We need as many books as money can buy," he said. "The more used books the bookstore can buy, the more savings students can have."

Andy Volpert, a junior in education from Bismarck, said students are the only ones with price complaints because they do not feel they are getting back all of money they deserve.

"There's nothing else to do but to store the books I couldn't sell back in my room," he said.

"But I'll take what I can get and just be happy."

Brad Ott, a junior in commercial recreation from Rockton, said he was not pleased with the amount of money he received when he sold his books back.

"I only got 10 percent of the money back," he said.

"The bookstores should at least give half the money back, but I realized that many books aren't being renewed for next semester."

Craig Case, co-owner of Saluki Bookstore, 701 E. Grand Ave., said the competition between the three bookstores in Carbondale encourages the Saluki Bookstore to buy back books every day.

He said it is more convenient for the students if they need money or if they do not need books anymore.

"More competition benefits the students," he said. "It will bring better prices and service for the students."

"It will give students more of a competitive choice."

Muslim survives Serb attack

The Washington Post

KAPETANI, Bosnia-Herzegovina — The fact that Zijad Kapetanovic has a hard head might have saved his life last week.

Kapetanovic, his daughter and his wife, all Muslims, were attempting to visit their homes for the first time in four years when they were caught in an ambush set by armed Serbs — the same men who roused them from this quaint hillside farming village in 1992. One man carrying a four-foot plank slipped off behind Kapetanovic and whacked him in the back of the head.

Kapetanovic was one of the luckier ones. The Serb attack left two Muslims dead.

Japanese say good health related to tea

Los Angeles Times

HAIBARA, Japan—Promising a taste that will linger for a lifetime, Isaku Watanabe fills a small pot with the best new tea of spring. Then he serves the tea by telling his guests not to drink it.

"Lick it," he commands. Roll it down the tongue to savor the subtle, even melancholy, blend of sweetness and faint bite, the gentle grassy scent. Then ponder the aesthetic he hails as the "essence of green."

"If you gulp it down," he declares, "you cannot experience green tea."

Watanabe, president of Kisakuen, a leading producer in Japan's green tea kingdom of Shizuoka prefecture south of Tokyo, has reason to be rhapsodic these days.

A new study by U.S. and Chinese researchers shows that drinking green tea reduces the risk of developing stomach cancer by as much as half.

The study of Shanghai residents by the National Cancer Institute and Shanghai Cancer Institute, now under review for publication, follows their 1994 joint study that found green tea consumption cut the risk of developing esophageal cancer by up to 60 percent.

The reduced risk was determined after adjusting for diet, smoking habits, alcohol consumption and other factors.

In Japan, the brew's perceived benefits have long been praised if not clearly proven ever since it was introduced from China in the 9th century.

Eisai, the founder of Japanese Zen Buddhism, extolled it as the "elixir that creates the mountain-dwelling immortal" in his 1211 tome, "Drink Tea and Prolong Life."

And numerous studies in Japan have indicated protective effects against everything from cancer to tooth decay.

Whitewater counsel not so independent—critics

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON—The former independent counsels are a varied lot, composed of Republicans and Democrats, smooth-talking silk-stockings and gruff old men. Varied, too, were their assignments. Some had big cases; some worked in virtual anonymity.

But from the well-heeled New York lawyer to the New Orleans septuagenarian, the former prosecutors agree on one thing: Whitewater counsel Kenneth W. Starr has put himself in a bad spot.

In separate interviews last week, former prosecutors expressed a consensus view that their old U.S. government position, with its broad investigative powers, is too important for any counsel to be distracted by the ivy outside caseload and high-profile clients that Starr has kept.

They advise Starr to strictly limit the non-Whitewater activity that has prompted recent criticism and focus on his wide-ranging investigation into President Clinton's decade-old real-estate venture and the White House reaction to inquiries into the matter.

Starr's clients range from tobacco giants to the NFL Players Association. Last month his schedule took him from the halls of the Supreme Court to a federal appeals court in New Orleans within one week.

He has some clients whose interests are inimical to those of the Clinton administration. In a major school-voucher case in Wisconsin, for example, Starr was paid by a conservative foundation that has funded some of Clinton's harshest critics.

Even though his outside work is quite legal, critics point to such cases as evidence that Starr is not as independent or devoted to his government duty as he should be. Much of the criticism has been strongly partisan, fueled by White House aides and other Democrats who want a tidy resolution to Starr's inquiry before the presidential election this fall.

Still, the observations of the former counsels are unusual in their breadth and force. Some of them know Starr personally, and others know his reputation as a man with a brilliant legal mind and strong Republican credentials.

SMILE ADVERTISING RATES $3.45 per Inch

Space Reservation Deadline: 2p.m., 2 days prior to publication.
Requirements: Smile ad rates are designed to be used by individuals or organizations for personal advertising—birthdays, anniversaries, congratulations, etc. and not for commercial use or to announce events.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING POLICY

Please Be Sure To Check Your Classified Advertisement For Errors On The First Day Of Publication

The Daily Egyptian cannot be responsible for more than one day's incorrect insertion. Advertisers are responsible for checking their advertisements for errors on the first day they appear. Errors not the fault of the advertiser which lessen the value of the advertisement will be adjusted.

All classified advertising must be processed before 12:00 Noon to appear in the next day's publication. Any processing after 12:00 Noon will go in the following day's publication. Classified advertising must be paid in advance except for those accounts with established credit. A 32c charge will be added to billed classified advertising. A service charge of $15.00 will be added to the advertiser's account for every check returned to the Daily Egyptian unpaid by the advertiser's bank. Early cancellation of a classified advertisement will be charged a $2.00 service fee. Any refund under $2.00 will be forfeited due to the cost of processing.

All advertising submitted to the Daily Egyptian is subject to approval and may be revised, rejected, or cancelled at any time.

The Daily Egyptian assumes no liability if for any reason it becomes necessary to omit an advertisement.

A sample of all mail-order items must be submitted and approved prior to deadline for publication.
No ads will be mis-classified.

Phil Jackson: Another victim of NBA head coaching success

By Rob Parker
Newsday

CHICAGO—Seemingly, Phil Jackson has had it all. In just seven years as the Chicago Bulls' head coach, he has an astounding 414 wins and three championships, plus a good shot at another one this season. But zero NBA Coach of the Year awards.

And even though his team produced an NBA-record 72 wins during the regular season, don't look for Jackson to get that coveted trophy this season, either.

"He probably won't win Coach of the Year, probably not," Dennis Rodman said. "He'll be another Pat Riley—have a great team but never get the respect of being a great coach."

Not surprisingly, Jackson, 50, isn't angry or frustrated about always being overlooked.

It's not his nature. "It doesn't bother me," Jackson said. "It's understandable."

And so is the reason Rodman linked Jackson and Riley together—even if the two coaches don't like each other. They both are victims of success.

"I know the position he is in," said Riley, who voted for Jackson as Coach of the Year, "always being accused of winning because he has great talent. And there isn't anybody who did a better job in the league than he did."

"And I think it's obvious."

Nonetheless, Jackson, who played 13 years in the NBA, 11 with the Knicks, finds himself in the same unfair position Riley found himself during his Los Angeles tenure. Sure, Riley won championships—four, to be exact—with the Lakers, but nobody gave him much credit. After all, he had Magic Johnson, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and James Worthy.

It wasn't until Riley came to New York that he finally got recognition for being a great coach.

And he didn't even win a title in four seasons with the Knicks. But people saw Riley lead, motivate and teach a group of less-than-championship-caliber players and come within a deflected jump shot by John Starks in Game 6 of winning the championship in 1994.

Michael Jordan, by far Jackson's biggest fan, thinks his coach finally will obtain full credit this season, even though many expected the Jordan-led Bulls, who also have Scottie Pippen, Rodman and Toni Kukoc, to win it all when the season started.

"If Phil is going to get his respect, it's going to be this season," Jordan said. "What Phil has done is take a multi-personality team and blend it

"He probably won't win Coach of the Year, probably not. He'll be another Pat Riley—have a great team but never get the respect of being a great coach."

Dennis Rodman
Bulls' power forward

together to be one of the greatest teams to play in the regular season thus far.

"I'm only counting the regular season because we haven't accomplished much yet in the postseason," he added.

Jordan, of course, expects to win another title when the last NBA game is played sometime in late June. And when the Bulls raise that fourth championship trophy—in a six-year span—it will be a testament to Jackson's ability.

"It takes a really unique man to blend those different personalities to where they focus on the same goal," Jordan said. "People take that for granted, on this level especially. He has the talent to blend all of that. This year shows what Phil's coaching ability can be at this level of competition."

Jordan's words are as straight as they come.

No fluff.
No sugar.

That's because Jordan's admiration for Jackson is so strong that His Airness has repeatedly said he won't re-sign with the Bulls until Jackson, who also is a free agent after the season, is taken care of first.

Jackson feels the same way about Jordan. "Michael's coming back. I'd like to be a part of that," Jackson said.

Even with Jordan, the Bulls never won a title until Jackson took over for Doug Collins in 1989. And while others don't give him total respect, Jackson's players do. "He's extremely well-prepared," guard Steve Kerr said.

"Everybody knows how he handles people."

Jordan and Kerr aren't alone in hailing Jackson's skills, especially in helping to develop the triangle offense, which is what the Bulls thrive on. So many of his players have good things to say about him, you'd have to form a line in order not to start a fight. "He gets the respect from the folks who know the job that Phil does, especially the guys in this locker room," guard Ron Harper said. "It's easy to say that he has two great guys on his team. But they can't carry the whole team. So you must put 12 guys out there that know how to

Men's golf look for top-three finish at MVC Championship

By William C. Phillips III
Daily Egyptian Reporter

Although the SIUC men's golf team has had an off season, SIUC coach Gene Shaneyfelt said he expects his team to finish in the top three in the Missouri Valley Conference Championship at Twin Oaks Golf Course in Springfield, Miss.

The tournament began Sunday, and will conclude Tuesday.

Shaneyfelt said since his team has been in a slump all season he is not looking for to his team coming in first place, but said a third place finish is realistic.

"I can't foresee us winning it if we don't play any better than we've played all year long," Shaneyfelt said. "The indication is that they won't play any better, or they obviously probably already would have at sometime or another."

There are 10 teams competing for the MVC championship. The University of Tulsa is the favorite, and other standouts include the University of Drake, Wichita State University and Illinois State University.

"We have to play good to finish in the top three because Drake has a real good team, Tulsa is one of the top 20 teams in the nation, and both Illinois State and Wichita State have decent teams this year," Shaneyfelt said.

Although the golf course the Salukis will compete on is 6,800 yards long, it does not consist of complex or tricky holes, according to Shaneyfelt.

"It didn't appear to be a overly difficult golf course," he said. "It didn't look like a lot of sand or water was on the golf course. It had a lot of big trees but not a lot of penalizing holes."

The recent wet weather prohibited the team from practicing because both the greens at Crab Orchard Golf Course and Hickory Ridge Golf Course were under water.

"We got rain for the first two days of the week and no courses were open in the area that we practice at," Shaneyfelt said. "It's been a tough week to practice."

Being unable to practice should not affect the players performances he said.

"All of these players have not been in a groove for the spring, and their scores dictate that," he said. "It might do them some good by not being able to practice, it will give them time to relax and lose some of the doubts, fears and frustrations they have had over the spring."

Shaneyfelt said he is looking for both freshman golfer Todd Eacker and senior Quinn McClure to lead the team in scores and make all-conference at the championship.

"It will take a couple of guys making all-conference to make the top three teams," he said.

Magic Johnson changes tune as Lakers' sixth man; Coach fires criticism of star

The Hartford Courant

Once, the Lakers led the NBA in class and victories. Now they lead it in referee bumps, unappointed player-coaches and late-season divisiveness (thank you, Magic Johnson). They're such great gossip fodder, we're sorry we won't have the 1995-96 Lakers to kick around anymore. Lakers kicked them out of the first round of the playoffs Thursday night.

The Lakers may have won 53 games during the season, five more than Houston, but the Rockets have won the past two NBA championships. Look for general manager Jerry West, disgusted by his team's behavior, to make major moves this summer.

Lakers coach Del Harris is very nice, but he must wish high school coaching paid half as well as the NBA, because he would be checking out faster than a woman alone at the Bates Motel. Psycho? Not these Lakers. Just not very together, ever since Magic came back.

Magic's problem is the same as every newly unretired superstar athlete whose abilities have shrunk, even as his ego has grown. The Lakers won 29 of their last 40 regular season games when Magic returned after a four-year absence. Although 37 pounds heavier, Magic happily accepted a less hefty role — at first. Years removed from his point guard brilliance, he left the driving to Nick Van Exel, seemingly content to come off the bench as a 6th man forward.

But when the playoffs — what Magic calls "Winnin' Time" — arrived, he sought to run more of the floor show, as he had in his prime under Pat Riley. After the Lakers lost Game 1, he told the media he was confused by Harris' post-up instructions, suggesting that the coach was hindering Magic's game by changing his role.

Harris, who treats Magic — and deservedly so — with infinite respect, couldn't resist one mild criticism of his superstar.

"If there was any player in the world who you did ask to make a little adjustment, you'd think you could ask one of the five greatest players ever," Harris said. "But whatever."

Junior pitcher Tory Hattan makes a delivery to home plate during the Salukis' 1-0 victory against Creighton Sunday afternoon at Abe Martin Field. Hattan threw a one-hitter and struck out six batters in the contest.

One-hit wonder

Pitcher Tory Hattan tosses one-hit shutout on way to 1-0 Saluki victory

By Chad Anderson
DE Sports Editor

After appearing dead in the first two games of the weekend series against Creighton University, Junior Tory Hattan took the mound Sunday and performed CPR on the Salukis and himself, handing SIUC a 1-0 win.

While the Southern's lifeline looked flat against Creighton (17-30) Friday and Saturday and picked up two losses, 12-1 and 5-4, Hattan's (5-4) had looked about as flat as the great plains of Nebraska during the last month of this season before his recent climb out of the cellar.

Hattan's recovery began with his performance at Eastern Illinois Wednesday, with a 8-6 victory, and continued with his one-hit performance against Creighton Sunday.

Luckily for the Salukis (26-23), Hattan was nearly unhittable in his complete-game seven inning shutout when he struck out six hitters, because the Dawgs could only muster one run against the Bluejays.

That single run came in the bottom of the fifth inning when freshman center fielder Joe Schley walked, and freshman third baseman Jerry Hairston took an outside fastball to the opposite field down the right field line for an RBI double to score Schley from first.

"We didn't by any means put on an offensive display, but we did something right in the right situation, namely the hit and run with Schley and Hairston," Saluki coach Dan Callahan said. "Fortunately for us, Tory had a great game on the hill to keep them (Creighton) in check, and as it turned out, one run was good enough to get the job done today."

With Wichita State University in firm command of first place in the Missouri Valley Conference, and Southwest Missouri State currently in second place, Southern sits in third eagerly awaiting the results of the weekend's games from around the conference.

Southern's two losses at the hands of Creighton and a canceled fourth game Sunday due to rain put a second-place finish in jeopardy, but Callahan said a second-place finish is feasible provided Southwest Missouri State University plays poorly in its final five games this season and SIUC plays well at Illinois State May 10-12 in its final four games of the

Losses to Southwest Missouri State, Tulsa take MVC season record to 11-9

By Michael DeFord
DE Assistant Sports Editor

Losing three of its last four contests is not how SIUC softball coach Kay Brechtelsbauer wanted to end Southern's regular season.

However, the Salukis did exactly that in its weekend series against Tulsa University and Southwest Missouri State University.

Following a 5-2 series-opening win against Tulsa Friday afternoon, Southern dropped its next three contests to end the season with a 11-9 mark in the Missouri Valley Conference.

The Salukis were pummeled 11-1 in their second bid against Tulsa, then dropped a pair from SMSU Saturday.

The Lady Bears inched by the Salukis 4-3 in the first game, then coasted to a 7-4 victory in the afternoon's second contest.

"As a team, we were not all that sharp this weekend," a solemn Brechtelsbauer said.

"It was a tough weekend," Saluki starter Jamie Schutteck, who got her 15th win of the season against Tulsa, had the first game all but wrapped up with a 3-2 lead going into the seventh inning.

After getting the first out, Schutteck gave up a walk and two hits to load the bases.

She then gave up a two-run single to junior outfielder Heather Anderson, which sealed the victory for SMSU.

Adding insult to injury,

"I feel good about how far this team has come since last season."

Kay Brechtelsbauer
Saluki softball coach

Southern's bid against the Lady Bears was plagued with seven errors.

Brechtelsbauer said she could live with the split with Tulsa, but dropping a pair against SMSU was a hard pill to swallow.

"We battled both games against SMSU," she said.

"They were just tough, tough losses. That's what happens when you end up with some errors, added by some runs."

Southern ends the regular season tied with the University of Northern Iowa, who also finished with an 11-9 mark.

Although official statistics will not be available until this afternoon, the Salukis will more than likely receive either a No. 4, or No. 5 seed in the fast approaching MVC Tournament, which begins Thursday in Normal.

Southern had the No. 3 spot in the Valley rankings prior to its weekend series.

Brechtelsbauer said she was hoping to gain a higher seed, but will have to settle with whatever league officials decide upon today.

"I had hoped we could hold the No. 3 spot," she said. "Hopefully, we can finish the season on a high note. The important thing is that we are in the tournament."

"We had some good things happen this weekend, so hopefully that will help get us ready for the conference tournament."

Despite ending the season on a sour note, she said she is happy with where the team is headed, and what it has accomplished this season.

"I feel good about how far this team has come since last season," she said. "Last year we didn't even make the tournament."

Between the Lines

University of Kentucky forward Antoine Walker is expected to announce his intentions toward his basketball future today.

Rumor has it the 6-foot-eight inch sophomore will announce whether or not he will turn pro.

Walker averaged 15 points per game for coach Rick Pitino's squad last season.

Pittsburgh Steelers' linebacker Kevin Greene is packing his bags and is headed for the Carolina Panthers.

Greene signed a $1 million per season deal and may earn up to $600,000 more each year through on-field incentives.

Greene, who played his first eight seasons with the Rams, had nine sacks last year and has 108 in his career.

In Carolina, Greene will be reunited with former Steelers' defensive coordinator and now Carolina head coach Dom Capers.

The final two teams in the NBA playoffs were determined Sunday as the Atlanta Hawks finished off the Indiana Pacers in Indianapolis, despite 29 points from Pacers' guard Reggie Miller who returned after missing three weeks with a fractured eye socket.

The Portland Trail Blazers were ousted as well, falling to the Utah Jazz at the Delta Center in Salt Lake City.

The Hawks will face the Orlando Magic in the Eastern Conference semi-finals, while the Blazers will take on the San Antonio Spurs in the West.
